Andante piu mosso

The half moon westers low, my love,
And the wind brings up the rain;
And wide apart lie we, my love,
And seas between the twain.

I know not if it rains, my love,
In the land where you do lie;
And oh, so sound you sleep, my love,
You know no more than I.

Adagio

He would not stay for me; and who can wonder?
He would not stay for me to stand and gaze.
I shook his hand and tore my heart in sunder
And went with half my life about my ways.

Now to her lap the incestuous earth
The son she bore has ta'en.
And other sons she brings to birth
But not my friends again.

Andante

The weeping Pleiads wester,
And the moon is under seas;
From bourn to bourn of midnight
Far sighs the rainy breeze:

It sighs from a lost country
To a land I have not known;
The weeping Pleiads wester,
And I lie down alone.

Moderato

Oh turn not in from marching
To taverns on the way.
The drought and thirst and parching
A little dust will lay,
And take desire away.

Oh waste no words a-wooing
The soft sleep to your bed;
She is not worth pursuing,
You will so soon be dead;
And death will serve instead.

Allegro

In the morning, in the morning,
In the happy field of hay,
Oh they looked at one another
By the light of day.

In the blue and silver morning
On the haycock as they lay,
Oh they looked at one another
And they looked away.

STORIES OF THE OPERAS

L'ORACOLO

It is the Chinese New Year. The devout are going to the House of Prayer and the revellers are returning from opium dens. Chim-Fen, the proprietor of one of these, pretends to love the nurse, Hooa-Quee, in order to gain access to the house of Hoot-Sin, a rich merchant, whose niece, Ah-Yoa, is the real object of his ambitions. Ah-Yoa loves Win-San-Looee, however. Chim-Fen overhears Hoot-Sin consulting Win-Shee, a learned astrologer, as to the future of his beloved little son, and determines to use the predictions of evil fortune that are to befall the child for purposes of his own. He kidnaps the child. The frantic Hoot-Sin offers the hand of Ah-Yoa to whoever can find his son. Win-San-Looee suspects Chim-Fen, forces his way into the opium den, and rescues the little boy. Chim-Fen pursues him, kills him, and pushes the child down a trap-door. Ah-Yoa goes mad when she sees the dead Win-San-Looee, and Win-Shee determines to discover the murderer. Passing the child's hiding place, he hears him crying and rescues him. He then lies in wait for Chim-Fen and strangles him with his own queue so cleverly that a passing policeman sees only two Chinamen quietly talking.

The Letter Scene from

EUGEN ONEGIN

Tatjana is in love with Onegin. One night, excited and restless and unable to sleep, she begs her old nurse to tell her stories. While listening, she tries to conceal her emotion, then begs the nurse to bring her writing materials and to leave her. Tatjana begins a long letter to Onegin, but finds it difficult to put her overwhelming thoughts on paper and makes many fresh attempts. The night wears on, but she is heedless of the time. At dawn she has finished her letter, and when the nurse comes to her room, gives it to her to be sent to Onegin.

AMELIA GOES TO THE BALL

The curtain rises with Amelia's frenzied preparations for the first ball of the season. Her husband enters and reveals that he has intercepted a letter sent by Amelia's lover. He upbraids her, and declares he will shoot the lover. Amelia is upset by these threats, not because she fears for her lover, but because she is afraid she will be prevented from going to the ball.

Her husband demands the lover's name; Amelia agrees to tell him if he will promise to take her to the ball. She reveals that her lover lives on the floor above. The husband rushes out, threatening to shoot him at sight.

Left alone, Amelia fears that a serious quarrel between the men will endanger her chances of attending the ball, and going out on the balcony, calls to her lover. She warns him to escape. The lover immediately slides down a rope ladder to Amelia's balcony. He proposes that they elope. Amelia refuses, having her heart set on the ball, and asks him to return later with his proposal. Before she can convince the amazed and unfortunate lover, her husband is heard returning. Amelia conceals her lover. The husband, unsuccessful in his search, agrees that he will take her to the ball, but tells her if he had caught the lover he would have had his revenge.

Suddenly he espies the lover, who comes out of hiding to demand satisfaction for the husband's bitter words. The husband, confronted by a young, vigorous man, many years his junior, abandons the idea of killing him. He urges reason instead, and tries to mend matters by discussing love and the rights of marriage. Amelia, bored and impatient, reminds her husband he is to take her to the ball.

Interested in their discussion, both husband and lover remain indifferent to Amelia's pleadings. When her husband rudely tells her to be quiet, she becomes desperate and breaks a vase over his head, knocking him unconscious. For a moment Amelia is at a loss. Then she calls loudly for help as the lover seeks to revive the husband.

The police and neighbors rush into the room. Amelia accuses her lover of being a burglar, declaring that he entered the apartment and attacked her husband. Amazed by this deceit, the lover appeals to her, but Amelia says she has never seen the man before. The police hustle the lover out, and take the unconscious husband to an ambulance.

At this Amelia burst into tears. The Chief of Police is touched, and remains to console her, saying that she still has her pearls and her money, and that her husband's condition is not serious.

But Amelia tells him the reason she is crying is that her heart is set on going to the ball. Now what can she do? She cannot go alone. The gallant Chief of Police proposes that if she will not think him presumptuous, he will be charmed to escort her. This is all Amelia could wish for. Joyfully she accepts, and they hasten out, arm in arm.

The moral of the story with which the Chorus cynically concludes the opera is, "If Woman sets her heart upon a ball, the ball is where she'll go."

GOETHE'S BIRTHPLACE IN FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN

Net proceeds from this evening's celebration will be donated toward the rebuilding of Goethe's birthplace. Contributions, which are income tax deductible, may be sent to the Treasurer, Herman Witte, 316 Walnut Street, Philadelphia 6, Pa.

JOHANN WOLFGANG VON GOETHE

1749 — 1832

JOHANN WOLFGANG VON GOETHE was born at Frankfurt on the Main August 28, 1749, the son of cultured and affluent parents. He attended the Universities of Leipzig and Strassburg, and in 1771 took up the practice of law in his native city. But he subordinated his profession to his real interests, and soon became the leader of the short-lived revolutionary movement in German literature known as Storm and Stress. In 1775 he accepted an invitation to Weimar, the capital of Saxe-Weimar, from the eighteen-year-old Duke Karl August. Here he spent the remaining fifty-seven years of his life, with only one protracted absence, a period of two years (1786-1788) devoted to his quest of the Classic ideal in Italy.

In 1773 Goethe published his first important work, Götz von Berlichingen, a historical play inspired by Shakespeare, and in 1774 his first novel, the Rousseauistic Werther, which attracted the attention of all Europe. At this time he began the six decades of intermittent work on his masterpiece, Faust. Shortly after his arrival in Weimar, Goethe was entrusted with important and varied state duties. He interested himself especially in agriculture and mining, and these interests led to his productive studies in the natural sciences.

Poet, novelist, dramatist, critic, statesman, scientist and philosopher, Goethe is pre-eminent as an interpreter of life. The greatest of modern humanists, he ever sought to see life steadily and see it whole. He cultivated self-knowledge, self-development and self-mastery. He looked upon literature—and upon the arts, on most of which he has left his imprint—not as an escape from reality, but as an enhancement of life. All his works, notably Iphigenie, Tasso, Hermann und Dorothea, Wilhelm Meister, Faust, are imbued with the reverence for life that characterizes his great disciple, Albert Schweitzer. Another eminent admirer, Benedetto Croce, has said of Goethe: "His own life together with his works offers us a complete and classic course in noble humanity."

AUF DEM SEE

Und frische Nahrung, neues Blut
Saug' ich aus freier Welt.
Wie ist Natur so hold und gut,
Die mich am Busen hält!
Die Welle wieget unsern Kahn
Im Rudertakt hinauf,
Und Berge, wolkig himmeln,
Begegnen unserm Lauf.

Aug', mein Aug', was sinkst du nieder?
Goldne Träume, kommt ihr wieder?
Weg, du Traum! so gold du bist:
Hier auch Lieb' und Leben ist.

CHOR DER ENGEL AUS FAUST

Christ ist erstanden!
Freude dem Sterblichen,
Den die verderblichen,
Schleichenden, erblichen
Mängel umwanden.
Christ ist erstanden!

FRÜHZEITIGER FRÜHLING

Tage der Wonne,
Kommt ihr so bald?
Schenkt mir die Sonne,
Hügel und Wald?

Reichlicher fließen
Bächlein zumal.
Sind es die Wiesen?
Ist es das Tal?

Blauliche Frische!
Himmel und Höh!
Goldene Fische
Wimmeln im See.

ON THE LAKE OF ZURICH

And so I drink refreshing nourishment and new vigor from this open-air world.
How sweet and kind is Nature,
nursing me at her bosom!
The waves rock our boat in time with our oars, as we row up the lake, and mountains, rising toward heaven through the clouds, seem to come toward us as we row.

Eyes, my eyes—Why cast downward?
Golden dreams, are you returning?
Away, you dreams! Golden though you may be: here, too, there is love and life.

CHOIR OF ANGELS FROM FAUST

Christ is risen!
Joy unto mortals,
whom those baneful,
malignant, original
infirmities had ensnared.
Christ is risen!

PREMATURE SPRING

Days of joy,
returning so soon?
With your gifts of sunshine,
hills and woods?

Brooks are flowing more abundantly now.
Are these our meadows?
Is this our vale?

Fresh weather so blue!
Heavens and hills!
Golden fishes,
swarming in the lake.

Buntes Gefieder
Rauschet im Hain,
Himmlische Lieder
Schallen darein.

Unter des Grünen
Blühender Kraft
Naschen die Bienen
Summend am Saft.

Leise Bewegung
Bebt in der Luft,
Reizende Regung,
Schläfernder Duft.

Mächtiger rühret
Bald sich ein Hauch,
Doch er verlieret
Gleich sich im Strauch.

Aber zum Busen
Kehrt er zurück.
Helfet, ihr Musen,
Tragen das Glück!

Saget, seit gestern
Wie mir geschah?
Liebliche Schwestern,
Liebchen ist da!

ZUM SCHLUSS

Nun, ihr Musen, genug! Vergebens
sucht ihr zu schildern, Wie sich Jammer und Glück wechseln in liebender Brust.

Heilen könnet die Wunden ihr nicht,
die Amor geschlagen,
Aber Linderung kommt einzig, ihr
Guten, von euch.

Gay-colored plumage
rustling in the grove,
heavenly songs,
mingling their sound.

Under the vigorous green foliage with its blossoms
the bees are humming and sipping the nectar.

A gentle motion
quivering in the air,
a charming emotion,
a somnolent fragrance.

Now a breath of air stirs
more vigorously,
but it is quickly lost
in the bushes.

But it returns
to my bosom.
Help me, ye Muses,
to bear all this joy!

Tell me what has happened to me since yesterday?
You charming sisters,
my sweetheart is here!

IN CONCLUSION

Now, ye Muses, that will do! In vain do you try to describe how misery and happiness alternate in the heart of a lover.

You cannot heal the wounds, inflicted by Cupid,
but relief can come only from you, for you are kind.

WANDERERS NACHTLIED

Über allen Gipfeln
Ist Ruh.
In allen Wipfeln
Spürest du Kaum einen Hauch;
Die Vögelein schweigen im Walde.
Warte nur, balde
Ruhest du auch.

HEIDENRÖSLEIN

Sah ein Knab' ein Röslein stehn,
Röslein auf der Heiden.
War so jung und morgenschön,
Lief er schnell, es nah zu sehn,
Sah's mit vielen Freuden.
Röslein, Röslein, Röslein rot,
Röslein auf der Heiden.

Knabe sprach: Ich breche dich,
Röslein auf der Heiden!
Röslein sprach: Ich steche dich,
Dass du ewig denkst an mich,
Und ich will's nicht leiden.
Röslein, Röslein, Röslein rot,
Röslein auf der Heiden.

Und der wilde Knabe brach
's Röslein auf der Heiden;
Röslein wehrte sich und stach,
Half ihm doch kein Weh und Ach,
Musst' es eben leiden.
Röslein, Röslein, Röslein rot,
Röslein auf der Heiden.

WANDERER'S NIGHT-SONG

O'er all the hill-tops
Is quiet now.
In all the tree-tops
Hearest thou
Hardly a breath;
The birds are asleep in the trees.
Wait. Soon like these Thou too shalt rest.

(Longfellow)

LITTLE ROSE ON THE HEATH

A boy saw a little rose standing, a little rose on the heath.
She was so young, and beautiful as the morning, so he ran quickly to get a close look, and saw her with great delight. Little red rose,
little rose on the heath.

The boy spoke: I'll pluck you,
little rose on the heath!
The little rose said: I'll prick you so, that you'll never forget me, and I won't let you pluck me.
Little red rose,
little rose on the heath.

And the wanton boy broke the little rose on the heath;
The little rose defended herself and pricked him, but her Woe! and Alas!
availed her not, and she just had to suffer. Little red rose,
little rose on the heath.

Aus

HARZREISE IM WINTER

Aber abseits, wer ist's?
Ins Gebüsch verliert sich sein Pfad.
Hinter ihm schlagen
Die Sträucher zusammen,
Das Gras steht wieder auf,
Die Öde verschlingt ihn.

Ach, wer heilet die Schmerzen
Des, dem Balsam zu Gift ward.
Der sich Menschenhass
Aus der Fülle der Liebe trank!
Erst verachtet, nun ein Verächter.
Zehrt er heimlich auf
Seinen eignen Wert
In ungnügender Selbstsucht.

Ist auf deinem Psalter,
Vater der Liebe, ein Ton
Seinem Ohre vernehmlich,
So erquicke sein Herz!
Öffne den umwölkten Blick
Über die tausend Quellen
Neben dem Durstenden
In der Wüste!

From

HARZ JOURNEY IN WINTER

But who is that man there, aloof?
His path is getting lost in the thicket, the bushes close in
behind him,
the grass he has trodden rises again,
and the wilderness swallows him up.

Ah, who can heal the anguish of him to whom balm has become poison, who has drunk hatred of men from the overflowing cup of love!
First scorned himself, he has now become scorner, he destroys in secret his own faculties in fruitless introspection.

If there be in Thy psalter,
O Father of Love, one note which can reach his ear, then give new life to his heart!
Reveal to his beclouded vision the thousand well-springs so near at hand to any one thirsting in the desert!

Sonata in C minor on the Ninety-fourth Psalm ... JULIUS REUBKE

Grave

- 1 O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth; O God, to whom vengeance belongeth, shew thyself.
- 2 Lift up thyself, thou judge of the earth: render a reward to the proud.

Larghetto—Allegro con fuoco

- 3 Lord, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph?
- 6 They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless.
- 7 Yet they say, the Lord shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard it.

Adagio

- 17 Unless the Lord had been my help, my soul had almost dwelt in silence.
- 19 In the multitude of my cares within me thy comforts delight my soul.

Allegro—Allegro assai

- 22 But the Lord is my defence; and my God is the rock of my refuge.
- 23 And he shall bring upon them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; yea, the Lord our God shall cut them off.

Dauidsbündlertänze, Opus 6 (Dedicated to Walther von Goethe by Florestan and Eusebius)ROBERT SCHUMANN

*Note: The Confederates of David (Dauidsbündler) were members of a group of young men destined by Schumann to slay the Philistines, musical or other. Two imaginary members were Florestan and Eusebius, who represented the dual sides of Schumann's nature,--the one vehement and stormy,
the other gentle and poetic.*

Old Legend:

*Delight is linked with pain
Forever, and forever;
In joy, devout remain,
In woe, lose courage never.*

- 1) With animation (Florestan and Eusebius)
- 2) Fervently (E)
- 3) With humor; somewhat clumsily (F)
- 4) Impatiently (F)
- 5) Simply (E)
- 6) Impetuously (F)
- 7) Not fast; with deep emotion (E)
- 8) Briskly (F)
- 9) With animation (Herewith Florestan came to an end, his lips quivering painfully)
- 10) In ballad style; impetuously (F)
- 11) Simply (E)
- 12) With humor (F)
- 13) Unrestrained and merry (F and E)
- 14) Tender and singing (E)
- 15) Briskly (F and E)
- 16) With good humor
- 17) As if from afar (F and E)
- 18) Not fast (Quite superfluously, Eusebius proclaimed the following, his eyes twinkling with happiness)
